25X1 6. [ ] Talked to Colonel Hal Gould, House Science and Astronautics Committee, who advised that the invitation and name cards for Agency personnel attending the Science Panel Meeting will be ready Monday morning. I will pick them up at that time.

25X1 7. [ ] In Mr. Kelleher's absence, I advised his secretary, Louise Ellis, that we have nothing to add to the Mystere incident. See Journal item of 12 January. It was suggested that they might desire to check with DOD or Air Force since the report related to a Defense installation activity.

25X1 8. [ ] Mrs. Peterson, in the office of Representative Florence Dwyer, called and asked what publications the Agency put out on the subject of conflict of interest and standards of conduct. Further discussion brought out the fact that Mrs. Peterson is checking with various departments and agencies on this subject as background for possible legislation to be introduced by Mrs. Dwyer. I advised Mrs. Peterson that we followed normal Government procedures in this regard and, inasmuch as we were a security agency, required that our employees be particularly circumspect. I also informed her that the questionnaire which our employees were required to fill out regarding their financial interests and business activities was almost identical to the sample form suggested by the Civil Service Commission. Mrs. Peterson was most appreciative of this information.

25X1 9. [ ] Representative Clement J. Zablocki sought me out to advise that he had an interview with Yuriy Konstantinovich Linkov, Third Secretary, Cultural Division, Soviet Embassy. He indicated that Linkov was very concerned as to whether or not the war in Southeast Asia was to be escalated. He also exhibited considerable concern as to whether the U.S. Government was sincere about being willing to negotiate with the Soviets on the question of deployment of ABMs. His third area of concern was whether or not the President's proposal of East-West trade would go forward. I thanked Mr. Zablocki and said I would pass this along to the Director.
